A STRONG-MINDED PERALE.

About a month ago a young man, sales-man in one of the leading houses in Paris, saw a young lady enter, to whom, during saw a young tady enter, to whom, during the past eight or ten days, he had sold a number of dresses, shawls, gloves, &c.-By Ley accent he sampled that she was a New Yorker. The stranger was very pretty and naturally the young man made himself agreeable and attentive. Whenever she visited the store, she always addressed hereafter the store, she always addressed hereafter. self to him, and while exondring the articles he placed before her talked inner. The day we speak of she was far less comment-

Of shall be at the hotel in an hour; here Is the address. Be kind enough to accompany the porter when he brings those orticles."

With these words she bowed reservency, and Lastily left the store.

The young man was at a loss what to think. However, an hour later, he entered the apartment of the American lady, who invited bim, like in old acquaints are, to lunch with her. Although thinking his ensurer's manners somewhat strange, the elerk accepted. While partaking of ten

"Without conceit, I say yes," answered and if you do not object, you shall be may chaperon. I will repay you for your lost time."

The young man tried to speak, but she

"I accept," answered the clerk, after a moment's hesitation.
"I am satisfied," continued the stranger,

"From this moment, I require only time to write to my employers."

And the terms of this extraordinary contract were entered into to the letter.

mana set; the letter a lew words only, but so well chosen as to express true affection, that the young lady started, not ter Lendon but back to Faris. It is needless to say that the letter was from the young clerk who had taken this method of reterring the morey forcest upon him by the young lady for services rendered. (He had not given her his address, thinking the matter was ended.) The was not lakely to have returned to his former employer. Ultimately she hearned up had taken in another house a sination the had below it another house a situation for inferior to the one he had formerly occupied. Probably till then she was undecided as to her course, for when she heard this, her mind was made up. She wrote; he came at once.

THE PREEDMENS BUREAU, The effort to get the Freedmen's Bureau suspended in the South, is prosecuted with great vigor and peralstency by those who prefer the rule of traitors to that of loyal men. At the same time appeals are coming up from the officers in command, and the people of those regions, asking that the Bureau may be continued, by a new tense of life, after its term, as established by the present law, expires. The protection of the freedmen and the helpless of all classes, as well as the administration of justice and the distribution of fixed to the famishing. are the functions which the Bureau Is now called on, as much as at my previous time, to perform. A spirit of revenge which leads to outrage upon the persons of the colored people, and to frequent murders, is as prevalent in some sections as it has lever been; and some of the mornes just emancipated from a cruel hondage, are so degraded in morals by the slave life they have led, and by their association with the whites of a class no better, are guilty of crimes which cannot be tolerated in civilized comin nities. PAINTINGS.—Several oil maintings, by our fellow townsman, George D. Brewerton Esq. are now at the Redwood Library, where they may be seen for a few days. These works, four in number, are upon large can vess, and are the latest productions of Mr. Breweiton's easel. I'wo of them, companion pictures, represent scenes in the tropics and in the Arctic occan and the others delineate the light-ship offour own coast, and the fight house on Desert Island.

The artist has chusen subjects in these pictures well adapted to his characteristic style, in which fights and shadows are brought into strong contrasts, and has wrought out his subjects in an effective, and brilliant manner. The marine pieces possess marked power. The light struggling through the heavy shadows, and the sea, are painted with rate skill. The movement of the waves, and their that under the gleanof light, is fine.

Entrop News: - Matters in this goodly city are moving on in much the usual manner. Business is exceedingly dull and many merchants and manufacturers are looking very despondingly upon future prospects, and will continue to be in doubt until the financial interests of the country are placed on a more permanent looks. Everybody scenes to feel the pressure of hard times, and there are but few cities in the country that have suffered more from the decline of business since the war than this. Probably there were but few, if any, that gathered a more extensive barvest from the vicies indes of the war during the reign of high prices, of the war during the reign of high prices, and it is not strange, therefore, that the reaction should now be severely left. Men who amass fortunes in a hurry should not complain too bitterly if they lose them in an equally brief period. Most of these incomplain to bindly now are as well off as they were before the rebellion, or as they would have been had there been no war, but, he have been had there been no war, but, he would not be the repeated which should not be such a first of the repeated which can be such as the research of the results of the res presents, they are now exceedingly unwilling to have it withdrawn. Hence the cry for special legislation by way of removing taxes, increasing tariffs &c., which is heard. We i think, however, that the manufacturers of i Rhode Island are not in so much more distress than some other classes that they and call for commiscration and pity, Nothing special has yet been done in the General Assembly, though a good deal of sition manifested to attend to the business of legislation, there is a probability that the will be an unusually short one. The report of the committee to precedigate and eport upon the frauds in the State Auditor's Department shows the losses to the State to be about $10,000. The committee fully exonerates Mr. Collins, the Auditor, from blame, as this money was paid on forged checks, the work of J. Walter Arnold, a clerk in the department. As the Bank of North America paid their checks without sufficient authority, proceedings have been instituted to save the State, if possible, from loss. Various changes in the manner of keeping the accounts are also proposed, by which to avoid similar errors in the future. There is a very universal feeling of regret that Chief Justice Bradley has decided to resign his office. His probable successor is not yet named, and the very different success to replay on the part of him instituted to avoid similar errors in the future.
